ASHHRA Thought Leader Forum Presents Summary of Findings on Operational Efficiencies

CHICAGO – October 2009 – The American Society for Healthcare Human Resources Administration (ASHHRA), a personal membership group of the American Hospital Association (AHA), convened its third Thought Leader Forum, Thursday, July 23, 2009, in San Francisco, Calif. at the 17th Annual Health Forum and AHA Leadership Summit.

A select group of thought leaders who are experts in operational efficiencies, participated in a two-hour discussion on “The Role of Health Care HR in Advancing Operational Efficiencies.” Results of the session have been compiled in a summary of findings and are currently available on the ASHHRA Web site at www.ashhra.org.

Thought Leader Forums, a three-part series under the direction of the ASHHRA Think Tank, provide a vehicle for ASHHRA to garner the most vital health care issues and trends to help its members become well-equipped to successfully lead their organizations into the future.

About ASHHRA

Founded in 1964, ASHHRA is the leading voice for human resources professionals in health care—linking people and organizations to leadership practices, best practices to patient outcomes, and outcomes to business results. For more information about ASHHRA, visit www.ashhra.org.
